Last month we said we were winding up the old Penthouse Polaroid Competition, but do you reckon it was as easy as all that? Such has been the overwhelming response to the competition, not to mention the calibre of the entries we've received, that we've decided we'd be mugs to quit while we are on a winner.

We're starting the second chapter of the competition with a selection of seven entries we've received over the past few months. Each of these photographers will receive a Polaroid Land Camera for his efforts. So could you, if your entry is judged worthy of publication in Australian Penthouse.

This is what you're up against. Can you do better? Then show us what you're made of by sending us a revealing snap of your favorite lady — taken on any film, Polaroid or otherwise — and let our judges decide if you've won yourself a Land Camera.

Please fill in this confidential form and return with your entry to: Australian Penthouse, Box 42, Cammeray 2062.

CAUGHT OUT

When blonde beauty Nadine Greenlaw was a blushing and very tempting teenager, she once nearly had her fortune told. "I was wandering down a street, just wearing a T-shirt and underwear, when a man drove by, gazed at me and shouted: 'There goes the next Penthouse-centrefold!'" The fellow's timing was off a bit — it's taken six years for his prediction to come to fruition. Nadine is now 23, but as you can see, the sands of time have only served to ingrain her beauty more deeply . . .

When women have decided there's no more room for them in the house, they don't usually leave their own bedrooms. And that's what happened to the beautiful, blonde Christianne. She was the star of the first of her two feature films, "The Blue Angel," and was named to the list of the most beautiful women in the world. She was also named to the list of the most beautiful women in the world. She was also named to the list of the most beautiful women in the world.

BLUE ANGEL

PHOTOGRAPHY BY CHRIS DICKSON

When old Karl Benz decided there had to be a better way than the horse, he set about designing his ideal car, the Mercedes. And maybe while he was at it, he dreamed up the ideal passenger for his supreme machine. If so, we're prepared to bet that old Benz's dream would have been shaped a lot like 23-year-old Pet Of The Month Christianne Jende . . .

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

Tousle-headed Pet Leale Hansen had a lot to do with putting the "great" into "the great outdoors." This 25-year-old beauty wilts like a cut flower if she's forced to spend too long indoors. Her heart is always in the sunshine while she's rock climbing, downhill ski racing, motorcycle riding or hiking. Leale is a good sport.

WALES

CAITLIN

This girl has to be about as Welsh as they come. She was named after the wife of Dylan Thomas, who happens to be her favorite poet. Her grandfather was a coal miner. She teaches the Welsh language to schoolchildren and she claims to be a very distant relative of Princess Margaret's former beau, Roddy Llewellyn. Find that hard to swallow? Well, try this: her nickname is "Rarebit."

PORTUGAL

CRIPPY

The amount of knowledge most people have of Portugal could probably be tattooed inside the foreskin of a very small mouse. Did you know that this North Atlantic country has great surf? Neither did we until we heard that the ocean was where our photographer discovered 20-year-old Crippy Santos. Crippy is a veterinary student in Lisbon who surfs all summer long. This calls for a larger mouse.

ANGELIKA

Very soon after she learned to count ein, zwei, drei, Angelika Luben set her sights on a million. This Aryan angel from Cologne is determined to either make a million or marry a million. That's why she chose to pose for Penthouse. In level-headed fraulein fashion, our Deutsche damsel explains her motives like this: "It pays to advertise."

STEPHANY

Stephany Jahved, 21, didn't exactly have to unravel her sari to be photographed for these pages. Although she was born in Madras, on India's eastern coastline, Stephany has spent most of her life in England and now regards herself as thoroughly Westernised. But she's still living proof that the Indians sure know how to serve up a hot dish.
